

Matthew Griffith

General Manager
Las Vegas

Matthew Griffith started his hospitality career when he was in high school and worked as a bus boy one night a week at Piero's Italian Restaurant in Las Vegas. He continued to work at Piero's while attending college at the University of Nevada, steadily moving up in the restaurant's ranks for 14 years. Griffith rose to the rank of captain before he decided to move to the next phase of his career.

This first restaurant job instilled a love for hospitality in him, leading Griffith to pursue his career.

In 1999, Smith & Wollensky recognized Griffith's passion and welcomed him to the Las Vegas team as a floor manager. Shortly after, he was promoted to assistant general manager. In 2009, his experience and drive to exceed guests' expectations led to Griffith being named general manager of Smith & Wollensky's Las Vegas location, the largest free-standing restaurant in Nevada.

Griffith has worked in the hospitality industry 24 years and enjoys every opportunity for guest interaction and the relationships he has developed with his team members.
